

El Camino Names Six To Faculty

Six newcomers to the El Camino College faculty have been named by Dr. Stuart E. Marsee, president of the college, following their appointments to staff positions by the Board of Trustees.

Three of the new faculty members will take positions in the division of humanities under the direction of Harry Ruby, assistant director of instruction. They are Charles W. Arnold, Dan Blocker and Joseph Castagno.

Wallace F. Cohen, assistant director of instruction in the social sciences and himself a newcomer, will welcome Edward H. Hosley and Joseph M. Georges to his division.

COHEN, WHO fills the administrative post vacated by John A. de la Haye, joins the El Camino staff after an assignment at Cerritos College. De la Haye requested a full-time classroom assignment after several years as head of the social science division.

The new assistant director studied at Porterville College, the University of California at Santa Barbara, and the University of Southern California. He taught history, English, economics, and political science at Whittier High School and Cerritos College.

Hosley will teach anthropology at El Camino. He received his bachelor of arts degree at the University of California at Berkeley and studied for his master's degree at the University of California at Los Angeles.

HIS PREVIOUS assignments include UCLA and Los Angeles City College, where he taught anthropology. Hosley also served 18 months as an information officer for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

Georges, joining the college staff as a full-year substitute instructor in history, is on his first fulltime teaching assignment. He attended the University of Notre Dame and will get his master's degree from the University of Chicago next month.

Arnold, a Torrance resident, studied at the University of California at Los Angeles and California State College at Long Beach. He will be an English instructor and has taught at Pier Avenue Junior High in Hermosa Beach, Torrance High School, and Compton College.

ANOTHER NEW English instructor, Blocker completed his work at the University of Florida and California State at Long Beach. He has taught at junior and senior high schools in Long Beach and at Long Beach City College.

Castagno will teach French and Spanish when he joins the El Camino faculty in the fall. He attended the University of Kansas City and received his master of arts degree at the University of California at Los Angeles. A Marine Corps veteran, Castagno achieved the rank of major.

All six instructors will meet their first El Camino classes when the college begins the fall semester Sept. 14.

WALTERIA BUSINESSMEN . . . Participating in the Walteria Round-Up Days celebration will be Joelle Steinman, (left), the first equestrian applicant in the parade to be held Sept. 13 and a candidate for honorary sheriff of Walteria, Harold Harris. Joelle will add brilliance to the parade with his mount Princess Renee, with silver trappings composed of more than one hundred thousand rhinestones.

CLEO THE LIBRARIAN
Among her many talents, Cleopatra achieved success as a librarian, according to a University of California, San Diego, scholar.
